He was ready. He called to his mother.

"Mother, I'm going out to the forest."

"Go ahead."

"I dreamed. I dreamed, so I'm going out. I dreamed about people being eaten, and I'm going out into the forest."

He went out. He carried a pouch of blowgun darts strapped over one shoulder. He pulled out his blowgun, and carried the blowgun. He also took arrows. He went out. As he went along, at about mid-morning he heard someone calling. "Yoohoo."

"That must be my mother calling, to tell the news about some white-lipped peccaries. My mother is calling."

He didn't call out. After a little while, someone said, "Tati Wafo. Tati Wafo."

"It's the voice of a monster," he said.

He listened some more, and the monster's voice came. "Tati Wafo, Tati Wafo," the monster's voice said. The calling was coming toward him.

"It's really a monster."

He got ready to leave. He left and went running, and jumped up into a tree. He looked around. He had two arrows. His other arrows were against a log.

He waited a little, and then two monsters came. One was a little ways behind the other. The one behind came running. When it saw Tati Wafo, it rose up and grabbed on the tree. When it was starting to climb up, he shot it in the throat with an arrow. It fell. The other one came and jumped up. Tati Wafo shot it in the throat with an arrow, and it, too, fell where the two of them would lie on the ground. The two of them lay there on the ground. He came down and stepped on the ground.

"I sure am glad I killed them with the arrows.Let them die."

He went home. He went, and arrived home.

"Mother, I dreamed and you didn't believe me. I killed two monsters with arrows, and they are lying there," he said.

"I didn't tell you to go out," his mother said.

"What's going on?" said his father.

"I killed two monsters with arrows, and they are lying there."

"Are they really monsters?"

"Yes, they are really monsters. They have deep eyes. They are rotting there. They are lying there. You didn't see them. They have long claws. Their claws are like this. The monsters have long claws, and they are lying there on the ground. I would like to pull out their claws, but they are fearsome. It would be good to pull out their claws. I wanted to cut off their hands, but they were fearsome. I came back. I came running back. I stopped to bathe on the way, and I have come back," he said. "They are fearsome. My dream came true. Our dream comes true when we go out into the forest. It was those monsters that I dreamed about. Fortunately the two that I dreamed about died," he said.

He didn't go out in the forest anymore. He stayed in the village.

"They were fearsome. They almost ate me, but I killed them both," he said.

Grandpa, he didn't go out anymore? (Yasito)

Right, he didn't go out anymore, because he was afraid. He stayed in the village. His mother didn't want to let him go. But then he went out. He finally went out. He went out, and he killed some game with his blowgun, and brought the animals back, brown capuchins and sakis. He brought the animals back, and his mother burned the hair off the animals.

"Did the monsters follow you?" asked his younger sister.

He spoke to his younger sister. "Yes, I could hear the monsters voice as it came to me. As the monsters voice came, I thought it was your voices as you were calling me, bringing news of white-lipped peccaries. The monster spoke. 'Tati Wafo,' someone said, but that is not my name. [This is not true, it was his name.] The monster called out a name that was not mine."

"Did it come calling?"

"It came toward me calling out. 'Tati Wafo,' the monster said. It was the monster's voice. 'I'm not staying here,' I said. So I ran away, and climbed up a tree. I climbed up, and waited, and the two monsters came. They came. No one pointed me out, but the monster saw me, and jumped up. One jumped up after me. When it was coming up fast, I shot it with an arrow. I shot it in the throat with an arrow, and it fell. The other one came behind and jumped up, and I shot it in the throat with an arrow, too. The two of them died."

"Brother, were they big?"

"The monsters were big. They are this high, lying there on the ground. I killed the big monsters," he said. "Let them die. I thought it was you calling. That's what happens when one goes out into the forest when a storm is threatening. I went out when a storm was threatening. I had dreamed about people being eaten. My dream came true."

"Brother, don't go out anymore."

His younger sister spoke to him, my father always said. The others laughed. They laughed at him.

"Don't laugh. A woman shouldn't go out into the forest alone."

Did the monster give him that name, Tati Wafo? Yes, he was Tati Wafo. It named him. They were laughing.

"Don't laugh. If one of you goes out into the forest, the monster will eat you, also if you go out together. The monster almost ate me. I was afraid. Because I was afraid, I jumped up in the tree. I was afraid the monster would climb up after me. When they climbed up the tree after me, I killed them, so they would die. Fortunately I killed them both with arrows. The poison killed them," he said.

His mother spoke sternly to him, and he stayed in the village. "Son, don't go out into the forest for a while."

"They knew about you because the others had blown snuff into your nose [to initiate you as a shaman]," his father said. "After you stay here some more, later you will go out in the forest."

"Father, I'm going to break off a hawa palm sheath for making blowgun darts, near here. After I have broken off the palm sheath, when I am done breaking off the hawa palm sheath, after I have cut out the darts, we will go and get iha. I will take iha bark off the stalks. When I have coated the arrow points and the dart points with poison, then I will go hunting," he said, my father used to say.

He didn't go out, but stayed in the village. Then he went to get iha. He finished the darts and the arrows, and he went to get iha. They went to get iha. He and his father took the iha bark off the stalks. They came back. Then he pulverized the iha.

"I'm going to pulverize the iha, Father."

So he pulverized the iha back in the village, just as he had said.

"After I have foamed up the iha, after I have stayed in the village, I will go out in the morning."

He was nearly ready. He coated the darts with poison all day long. He also coated the arrows.

"This is a piece of an arrow I shot a monster with. Its eyes were sunken."

"Is that another piece of an arrow that hit a monster?" asked his brother-in-law.

"That is another piece of an arrow that hit a monster. I put them on the ground."

"Let's eat the monsters."

"Go ahead and eat them. Their eyes are sunken way down inside."

"Were their claws long?"

"Their front paws and their back paws had long claws. They had long claws like knives. They had sharp claws, I felt them. I wanted to cut them off, but I thought about it, and I left them there, because I thought another monster might get me [later, on another trip]. They lay there. Let them die. Other monsters will appear."

He was staying in the village. He got up early.

"I'm going to get up early."

"You be careful," his father said. "The shaman's stone is teaching you. Because the others blew snuff into you, the creature of the shaman's stone is teaching you. I don't know. I didn't initiate you as a shaman, someone else did. You should have just met them, but you killed them."

"I don't want to meet the monsters. The monsters were fierce. Because the monsters were fierce, I shot both of them with arrows. Let them die."

He was ready, and he went out.

"Don't say that I am calling you. Don't forget," his mother said.

So he went out. He went, and disappeared into the forest.

"The one who killed the monsters is going into the forest. The [other] creatures of the shaman's stone know him, because the others blew snuff into his nose. The one who killed the creatures of the shaman's stone with arrows is going into the forest."

"Father, is it because they smelled his smell?"

"It's because they smelled his smell. He killed the ones who smelled his smell, and he is going out. Let them die."

He went out. He killed animals with his blowgun. He started back, carrying the animals on his back. He had killed brown capuchins with his blowgun. He came back.

He arrived back. The others untied his animals, and they carried them off. He had hit the monkey in the chest with the dart.

"Did you hit the monkey in the chest?"

"I hit it in the chest. It was looking around to see me, and I hit it in the chest, and it keeled over."

"Oh."

They pulled out the broken-off darts. They pulled out the darts, and burned the hair off the animals.

"Well? Did you come across the Tati Wafo monster?"

"There was no Tati Wafo. Tati Wafo died. Tati Wafo was lying on the ground, I killed it with an arrow. Tati Wafo won't come back, because Tati Wafo is dead, I killed it."

They laughed.

"It is rotting, Tati Wafo. The vultures are pulling its eyes out. Let them eat it. That's what they eat."
