They also fought against the Apurinãs. It was them. It was the Kerebe lake. The fighting began. They fought against the Brazilians. The Brazilians came here to fight against them. The Banawás also killed a man. I forgot his name. They deceived him with a young squirrel monkey. They cut off his head.

They wanted Towisawa. The Brazilians wanted to kill Towisawa. The Jarawaras deceived them. They came back.

"Towisawa, you don't know what the Brazilians said. You didn't hear what the Brazilians said. But I heard what the Brazilians said. Towisawa, go away. Deceive Eremodina. Let the Brazil nuts that you stored be for now. Say, 'I will come back shortly,' and then don't come back," the Paumari said, Tomitomi said.

"All right."

"Leave quickly when you hear me speaking. When you hear me, leave in the morning. I am going downstream, too, that's why I am telling you," he said.

Then Towisawa and the others slept.

"I will do this," he said. "I will speak to the boss," he said.

"The Brazilians said you are going to die. The Brazilians said you are going to die when you are finished cutting open the Brazil nut pods."

"Right, I will leave tomorrow."

"Leave quickly tomorrow. You heard what I said," he said. "I'm going downstream, too. You take my canoe for now. My canoe is there is the water. Leave the canoe at the mouth of the Korobo stream. I will go pick up the canoe."

So Towisawa bought things. They came back to the village, after working for the Brazilian, cutting Brazil nuts out of the pods.

"We will come back for payment for the Brazil nuts," they said.

"Right, come back soon," they said.

"Right, it won't be many days. I will come back quickly," Towisawa said.

"Right, I will wait for you," their boss said.

So they came here. They came, and arrived. They arrived at Fare Wari. There is an old village site there. They slept, and came on home. They came, and arrived. Then they stayed there a long time. They didn't go back for a long time, deceiving the Brazilians.

"We won't go there to get the Brazil nuts. The Paumari said that the Brazilians said we should die. Let the Brazilians cut open the Brazil nut pods," they said.

So they didn't go back there. Then they cut down trees. They lived there for a long time. They planted the gardens. They burned the trees. In the dry season they burned the trees. Then they planted the gardens. They left the gardens behind. They left the crops behind. They came back. They arrived back. There were many people. Many people died long ago. We live in their old villages.

"Let's go, our crops must have grown. Let's go look at the crops."

They went back. They came upon the crops.

"We won't live here anymore when we have used up our crops. When we have used up our crops, we won't live here anymore. We will then live over there. The Paumari said the Brazilians are saying bad things. The Paumari said the Brazilians are threatening us," they said. "Let's live over there," they said.

They came and lived over this way. They lived over this way for a time. There is a sandy clearing there. There is a sandy clearing from long ago. Their old village is still there, it doesn't go away.

They went to get the food. They carried back the food. They carried back more food another time. It was their village where they didn't wait for the crops. They didn't wait, and the other crops spoiled when they left them behind.

They came back, and they left again. Wara Lake is there. They went and lived there. They killed fish, bahama fish, and they ate bahama fish. Then they cut down trees. They planted the gardens. They used up the crops. There were many bananas, and peach palms. They didn't stay living in each place very long, and their crops became ruined in many places, they used to say. My aunt told the story. They didn't stay living in places long because they were afraid. They ate the fish of the Faha Biri stream, they used to say. Then they started to put kona poison in the water. They put kona poison in the water for the fish, which died. Those are the fish which we shoot with arrows. They went after white-lipped peccaries. Then they had feasts. The village site is there. They shot the peccaries with arrows, because there were no shotguns. They shot the peccaries with arrows, and they feasted on the peccaries. They had feasts by themselves. They danced and sang. Then they whipped girls. They whipped two girls, I don't know their names. They came this way, then they went and lived out there. They were eating. They went after white-lipped peccaries again, and feasted on the peccaries. My grandfather killed two tapirs. They had lots of feasts in that place. We don't feast much here. We don't eat meat. We are always here not eating meat, because of you [young people who don't hunt]. People ate their game, because they shot animals with blowguns and with arrows.
